

Bradley

Bradley gives new meaning to the term "winning personality". When a cat of any age comes in to Austin's Town Lake Animal Center with the feline leukemia virus, they are normally only kept for several days because there are so few adoption options for them. But somehow little Bradley managed to stay there for an unprecedented 28 days! The volunteers just couldn't bear to see such a boisterous little bundle of love and playfulness euthanized, so they pulled every string and probably broke a few rules as they desperately tried to find him a home. Word began to spread and pleas went out everywhere - but without luck.

Cookie's Place at the sanctuary was full - and sadly, we have to say "no" to a heartbreaking number of FeLV kitties. But when it seemed that every other possibility for Bradley had been exhausted, we decided that he's just a small guy and we could manage to squeeze him in somehow. So on Valentine's day, to the sound of cheers all over, he came to his new Shadow Cats home. Now he's busy running around meeting all his new playmates, so watch for him on the KittyCam - he'll be the orange blur dashing across the room!
